Lesson 7

Connected to the Power

“You are the God who performs miracles; you display your power among the peoples.”

Psalm 77:14

One year, an ice storm knocked out the power to our neighborhood for days. While circumstances were not comfortable, we have lots of memories of fun things we did together! Our motto for that time became, God’s power never fails! When we have bad weather days now, even when we don’t lose power, we sometimes do those things we did during that power outage because we enjoyed the closeness so much! Activities such as using flashlights and candles; putting blankets, pillows and sleeping bags on the floor; reading to each other or telling stories and playing cards and board games together all made for a cozy and loving environment in the middle of a seemingly negative situation.

Try This:

I try to keep my kids directly connected to grandparents and extended family members, whether they live near or far. When we are in the car, I might have them talk with a relative for a few minutes on my cell phone. When I want to share something one of the kids has done, I have the kids call and share it. When God has done something for our family, we call and share that, too! Now that my kids have built relationships with their faraway relatives, they will ask to call and share something from their life with family members.
